The HelpAge global network is a unique worldwide alliance standing up for the rights of older people. With 170+ members across 90 countries, the HelpAge global network is a truly international movement for change. We share one major goal: creating a fairer world for older people so they can live safe, healthy and dignified lives.

As a member of the HelpAge global network, you will be joining like-minded organisations who collaborate to strengthen national, regional and global influence. We believe we are stronger together.

Join us today and be part of a global movement changing the world for older people!

Why become a member?

Enhance your impact

The network gives you opportunities to work with other organisations and strengthen your capacity to implement programmes, influence policy at all levels and respond to humanitarian crises. We share technical expertise, resources, and fundraising opportunities.

Raise your profile

We can help you increase your influence by being part of a recognised global partnership. With the network's unique understanding of ageing issues and its strong reputation, members have a powerful voice to influence policy and practice at all levels.

Learn with others

The network provides opportunities to connect with other organisations working on similar issues, and learn from their experiences and challenges in addressing the barriers older people face. You will have access to learning groups, online resources and the latest news in the sector.

Raise the voice of older people

The network's wide experience and connections help strengthen older people's voice. We share evidence, expertise and opportunities to support older people to speak out about their rights.

Hear from HelpAge global network members

Ageing Nepal

“HelpAge community-based approaches working group is a great platform for us to join. The group members are such ardent experts for development of healthy ageing community resources. The platform has enhanced our knowledge and understanding on good practices of community-based approaches in different regions of the HelpAge network. It has also helped us to strengthen our rapport with network members from different countries. I believe this solidarity will be helpful to further galvanise people to take action on healthy ageing all around the world.”

Malawi Network of Elderly Persons Organisation (MANEPO)

“Engagement in HelpAge’s research and advocacy programme has been thoroughly beneficial to us. We have had an opportunity not only to generate new high-quality evidence but also to exchange experiences and finetune our advocacy objectives.”

Mission Armenia

Mission Armenia

“Being a member of the HelpAge global network allows us to be the part of a worldwide partnership and to have input into the international movement for change that’s aimed at putting the rights of older people on the global agenda.”

Coalition of Services for the Elderly

Coalition of Services for the Elderly, Philippines (COSE)

“COSE is a long standing member of the global network and has learned from the experiences and best practice of other network members that we are now replicating in the Philippines.”

Network members can pay a voluntary contribution that will go directly into facilitating network activities and enhancing our joint work.
